The Director of Central Intelligence

Washington, D.C. 20505

29 November 1988

MEMORANDUM FOR: The Honorable E. C. Aldridge, Jr.
Director, National Reconnaissance Office [redacted]

25X1

SUBJECT: The DCI's Annual Report to the Congress--1988 [redacted]

1. It is again time to prepare the DCI's Annual Report to the Congress. In this year's Report, I want to convey to the Congress an idea of how the Intelligence Community responded to the significant events of 1988, and the implications and consequences of these activities. As this is a formal opportunity for us to speak about our efforts on a broad scale, I want to be sure that our accomplishments are presented in a way that highlights the contributions we make to our nation in support of national security goals and policies. I also want to be sure that we discuss shortfalls and problems that lie ahead as we focus our efforts to meet the growing and increasingly complex demands that are being made on the Community. It is important that the Congress be aware of the return that is gained on intelligence investments, while recognizing the challenges that confront us in an environment of increasing requirements and diminishing resources. [redacted]

2. The attached Terms of Reference contain an outline for the Report. You will note that the Report will continue to use the National Foreign Intelligence Strategy as a point of reference and rely on a review of the year's events as an organizing principle. When preparing your contributions, you should tie the points you wish to make to these events or any significant demands on your organization, citing concrete examples in some detail. This will help ensure that we can clearly demonstrate how intelligence has made a difference, or discuss how circumstances led to our inability to provide intelligence. [redacted]
